About Bhopal

Bhopal is also known as the city of lakes and is blessed with enormous number of soothing lakes. We have Upper lake, Lower lake, Shahpura lake, Motia talab, etc. The second biggest artificial (man-made) lake of Asia lies in Bhopal. It has a National Park within the city itself, Van Vihar.

Bhopal, in its proximity, contains two UNESCO world heritage sites. One is Sanchi Stupa constructed by Ashoka. Tropic of cancer passes through there. The second is Bhimbhetka, which has caves painted back more than 5000 years ago.

Shaurya Smarak is a war memorial situated at Bhopal, inaugurated by our Prime Minister, in 2016. It has a museum dedicated to the soldiers and martyrs of our country.

Bhopal has many lavish shopping malls. DB City Mall ranks among the top 10 malls in India. Bhopal is a paradise for fast-food lovers, and had some delicious fast-food joints.

Bhopal's Rani Kamalapati railway station (formerly known as Habibganj railway station) was the first ISO-certified railway station in the country.

Bhopal has an amazing blend of religions. Some of the important holy places in bhopal are: Birla Mandir, Manuabhan Tekri, Jama-Masjid, Moti Masjid etc. It is the fusion of peace, greenery, development, liveliness, religiosity, and many more aspects.

Apart from NIFT, Bhopal has some of the best institutes of national importance like Maulana Azad National Institute of Technology (NIT), Indian Institute of Science Education and Research (IISER), School of Planning and Architecture, National Law Institute University (NLIU), AIIMS, Indian Institute of Forest Management (IIFM), etc.
